Negrev Dinner inaugurates 80th Anniversary of J.N.F. Founding

The Honourable Bob Kaplan, Solicitor General of Canada, will be honoured at the 1981 Ottawa Negev Dinner.

The testimonial dinner, originally scheduled for Wednesday, October 28, will be held on Tuesday, October 27 at the Jewish Community Centre, and will be the inaugural function of the National 80th Anniversary celebrations of the Jewish National Fund.

The evening will be preceded by a meeting of the National Executive of the Jewish National Fund of Canada, which has supported major afforestation and land redemption projects in Israel.

David Shore, Chairman, Jewish National Fund Council of Ottawa, has announced the following appointments for the 1981 Ottawa Negev dinner:

Dinner Chairman — Bernard M. Alexandor, Q.C., Dinner Co-Ordinator — Herbert Zagerman, Arrangements Committee —

Hon. Bob Kaplan,

Muriel Levine, Foundation Co-Chairmen — Sam Taller, Harry Weidman, David Zelikovitz.

Mr. Kaplan is being honoured for his long-time interest in Israel and for his efforts as an individual and a parliamentarian on behalf of Canada and its people. Among his concerns during his parliamentary career, have been multiculturalism, immigration, civil liberties, national health and welfare.

Past Ottawa Negev Dinner

honourees include: Bertram Loeb (1980); Hugh M. Grant (1979); The Honourable Justice Abraham Lief (1978); Hugo Levendel (1974); Samuel Taller (1974); Harry Weidman (1974).

For further information, call Michael Goldstein or Ralph Moscovitch, toll free, at 1-800-361-8459.

Drive to be accelerated

William Grossman, Chairman of Hillel Lodge's current drive to retire an accumulated debt of some $150,000 has expressed general satisfaction with its progress but points to the mail strike and the summer hiatus as factors which caused a slowdown in momentum.

At press time, gross commitments have exceeded $70,000. The pace will be quickened during the next few weeks as workers fan out to see individuals who have not yet made a contribution.

Bonds launch annual drive

The 1981 Israel Bond Drive will again be headed by Morton Taller as General Campaign Chairman and Myrna Potechin as Chairman of the Women's Division.

Plans for the campaign include a series of Parlour Meetings, both in the General Division and the Women's Division, individual solicitation by members of the Campaign Committee as well as the High Holy Day Appeal, which will take place in the Synagogues during Yom Kippur Services on October 8.

In preliminary canvassing of a limited number of members of the community, results show a substantial increase in sales over the previous year on a card-to-card basis, and Mr. Taller has expressed the gratitude of the Bond

Organization for the support being shown for Israel's Development Budget.

Working with Mr. Taller are several Vice-Chairmen of the Campaign Committee including Sol Kaiman, Ernie Potechin, Gdalyah Rosenfeld, Samuel Taller and Herbert Zagerman.

The Women's Division is made up of representatives of the many women's organizations. These representatives have arranged for speakers to present the Israel Bond programme to their membership at special bond meetings of their organization.

On the basis of early commitments, both Mr. Taller and Mrs. Potechin expect that year-end sales will exceed last year's total.

Synagogues designate Sept. 19 JCC Shabbat

Rabbis of all Ottawa Congregations have designated September 19 as J.C.C. Shabbat.

Shabbat services on that day will be dedicated to informing Synagogue members of the importance of the Jewish Community Centre to the community as a whole, and specifically the need for each congregant to affiliate himself and his family by becoming a J.C.C. member.

In the past three years, a close association has developed between the Centre and Synagogues, resulting in a number of combined programs. The Centre has served as a resource to the Synagogue Youth Programs by providing direct staff support, consultation, and through the development of the NCCJY, a forum in which representatives of all Jewish youth groups meet and plan programs cooperatively.

The Synagogues have also been sponsors as well as participants, in numerous community undertakings associated with the Centre, including Arts Alive (Book Fair), and the Institute of Judaic Studies program at Carleton University.

Whether people utilize the Centre for its programs or as a communal resource for meetings and social events, the message to them will be the same: In a time of declining charitable dollars, and in support of the important role the Centre plays in the life of Ottawa's Jewish Community, Centre membership is a priority.

Congratulations Bill Holzman and Michael Zunder. We're proud of you! See story on Page 11.

Allocating 1981 Campaign Funds

On Wednesday evening, September 23, our newly-elected Board of Trustees will hold the first of its regular monthly meetings of the year. The most important piece of business with which it will have to deal is the distribution of funds raised in the 1981 United Jewish Appeal for beneficiaries in Israel, in the Ottawa Jewish Community and for those which operate on the national scene in Canada.

The Trustees will have before them the recommendations of the Central Planning, Budget and Allocations Committee which have, in turn, been vetted by the Executive Committee and passed along for approval. It took many hours of work by many people to reach this stage. Allocations Committees are not new. We have had them ever since 1952 when the U.J.A. format was initiated. This time, however, the process was different.

It really began two years ago when we established an integrated planning and budgeting system which was weighted heavily in favour of forward planning. Panels on Jewish Education, Social Services and Communal and Group Services were formed. Agency representatives sat as equals with members of the Board of Trustees who represented the community at large.

Some very positive results have emerged from the conscious effort to bring our local beneficiary agencies into the overall planning process. The Panels have become a forum for the exchange of information which has led to better understanding, inter-agency co-operation and some inter-agency programming. Standard budgeting forms have been introduced. And finally, the system has a built-in mechanism for helping the agencies to define their own priorities and trim their budgets. This assumes major significance when fund-raising is not keeping up with the inflationary spiral.

Recognizing the need for economies in the fiscal year which began July 1, we told our agencies last February to come in with budgets not exceeding 92.5% of their allocations in the previous year. We knew this would create a hardship and could very well lead to the reduction or even elimination of some essential services. Nevertheless, we had to be prepared for all eventualities and we stuck to our guns with one proviso. If the 1981 Campaign produced as much or more than 1980, then agencies could apply for supplementary grants in program packages of $5,000 each.

Budgets were examined on a line-by-line basis by the Panels which had authority to deal with 92.5% on an individual agency basis and an additional 2.5% calculated on last year's total allocation to the agencies represented on each of the three Panels. The recommendations were then sent on to the Central Committee where they were reviewed from the perspective of the overall picture. On the strength of projections made by campaign leadership, the Central Committee drew up final proposals which the Trustees will deal with on September 23.

In preparation for that session, the members of the Board will receive a package of materials which they will be able to study beforehand. The meeting, incidentally, is open to any member of the community in good standing. If you would like to attend and want the data, call Hy Hochberg at 232-7306 and he will send it to you.

I will report to you on the conclusions reached by the Trustees after the meeting takes place.

Joint Vaad — Hillel Task Force

As a result of representations made by the Board of Directors of Hillel Lodge to the Jewish Community Council for assistance in helping to determine future directions for the Ottawa Jewish Home for the Aged, a Joint Vaad - Hillel Task Force has been established. Recommendations for action are to be submitted to the governing bodies of both groups by June 30, 1982.

The process was accelerated by a visit to Ottawa early in July of Sam Ruth, former Administrator of the Baycrest Centre for Geriatric Care, a model for North American Jewish communities. His consultation included a series of meetings with officials of the 48-bed Home and a session with the Hillel Board and our Panel members. He made a number of recommendations which have been included in the items to be looked at during the study.

The Task Force will meet at least half-a-dozen times between now and next spring. Its terms of reference include an examination of the financial base of the Home; Jewish community responsibility for funding; Hillel's mandate; the physical structure; changing needs of the residents; governance and administrative practices; relationships with other groups; and Hillel's role in developing an integrated approach to serving the elderly in our community.

Alfred Friedman, former Chairman of our Panel on Social Services will chair the Task Force. Representing Hillel Lodge are Dan Doctor, Sylvia Goldblatt, Sidney Green, William Grossman, Theodore P. Metrick and Galyah Rosenfeld. The Vaad's nominees are Gerald Berger, Dr. Eli Rahin, Sol Shinder, and Norman Zagerman. Hy Hochberg, Yale Greenberg and Samuel Asher will provide staff support.

In the meantime, Hillel Lodge's Campaign to retire its accumulated deficit continues under the able chairmanship of Bill Grossman. He is doing a fine job but needs help. Call him if you can lend a hand. And, if you haven't made a contribution yet, there is no time like the present.

Staff change at Embassy

Moshe Ofer, Minister-Counsellor of the Embassy of Israel for the past five years has left Ottawa for Jerusalem where he will take up a new assignment at the Foreign Ministry.

Mr. Ofer has made a host of friends during his mission to Canada and all join in wishing him well in his new post.

His successor is Itzhak Shelef, a career diplomat who has just arrived from Israel. Mr. and Mrs. Shelef and their children have taken up residence in the capital.

We extend a warm welcome to the Shelefs and look forward to having them become an integral part of our community.

More about them in the next issue.

J.C.C. Youth Service Fund inaugurated

At the request of the Jewish Community Centre, the Ottawa Jewish Community Foundation has established a "J.C.C. Youth Services Fund" for individuals who wish to support youth activities in the community.

All contributions will be treated as capital and only the income used to advance the purposes of the Fund. Revenues generated will be directed towards such projects as the High School Jewish Students Union, the National Capital Council of Jewish Youth, leadership development courses and other activities of a like nature.

The Fund will give priority to programs which promote the development of young leaders in their teens and generally activities which encourage and facilitate the involvement of that age group in programming for themselves.

Contributions are tax exempt and may be made either in person at the Foundation office at 151 Chapel Street or by telephoning 232-7306. As is the practice with all Funds, acknowledgements will be carried in Foundation section of the Ottawa Jewish Bulletin.

This greeting card or others equally attractive go with each parcel. The name and address of the sender are added on the inside.

Parcels give comfort at High Holiday time

Earlier this week, Bess Greenberg, continuing a tradition established by her husband Gilbert, wrote to everyone in the community inviting contributions for Rosh Hashana gift parcels to be sent to soldiers in Israel. This is the eleventh annual appeal and each one has brought a warm and heartening response from hundreds of individuals in the Jewish community.

The parcels go to young men and women who are required to be on military duty during the High Holy Days.

They are sent by the Association for the Welfare of Soldiers in Israel. Packed by volunteers, the parcels contain candy, soap, toothpaste, an extra pair of socks and a greeting card giving the name and address of the individual in Ottawa with whose good wishes the package has been sent.

The object is to foster closer relations between the people and the army to help ease loneliness during a time when soldiers cannot be with their families.

This year, parcels cost $10. each. Contributions may be for any number desired. Cheques payable to "Israel Soldiers' Welfare Fund" should be mailed to Mrs. Greenberg, P.O. Box 5152, Station F, Ottawa K2C 3H8.

Condolences

Condolences are extended to the families of:

Mrs. Hilda Ages

Mrs. Salome Berger, Toronto (mother of Gerald Berger)

Mrs. Pauline Brozofsky, Baltimore (wife of Alec Brozofsky)

I. Lewis Cohen

Mrs. Rae Jewett, Providence (mother of Gittel Tatz)

Mrs. Jennie Monson, Toronto (mother of Juair Monson)

Mrs. Yetta (Landau) Shinder, Toronto

May their memories be a blessing.

Tribute to Pembroke Jewish Community

Lorry Greenberg, General Chairman of the 1981 United Jewish Appeal presents a photograph of the Old City of Jerusalem to the Beth Israel Synagogue of Pembroke during a recent visit to that community. Synagogue president Newton Prager accepts. With them are Morrie Eisen, Co-Chairman of the Pembroke U.J.A. Committee and Ethel Taylor, 1981 U.J.A. Women's Division Chairman.

Commentary by Cynthia Engel Editor

Okay, kids, the party's over, and there isn't a mother anywhere who hasn't been grinning like a cheshire cat and humming like a songbird since school bells first rang out, heralding a return to normalcy and blessed routine. The sight of our city streets bursting with flocks of bag-toting, lunch-pailed children warms the callous maternal heart and signals the end of the wonderful summer laze. For everyone.

We're all back by now. Back from Cape Cod and Ogunquit. From Israel and England. From day camp and sleepover camp. Or just plain back from a surfeit of bright afternoons and easy nights spent in the city.

Real life has begun. And bolstered by rest and relaxation, we're ready for it. For we stand on the threshold of a brand New Year, mentally rubbing our hands together in anticipation of living it — please G-d — to the full.

Calendars have been pencilled in, marking the days and times designated "special".

And Yom Tov is in the air.

Rosh Hashana, Head of the Year. A time of raisin-filled round challahs, and apples and honey. Rosh Hashana, when we fill our shuls to capacity to pray as One, then return home en masse to share in sumptuous meals and discuss the merits of the Rabbi's sermon. Or lack thereof!

The Yom Tov feeling pervades. For at this time of year, Yom Tovim occur in rapid succession, one after another.

Yom Kippur, Fast following Feast. Our holiest of holy days. The day when each of our tomorrows is decided.

Succot is in the wings. The Feast of Booths, the fun of breaking bread in fragile, plant-festooned huts. Weather permitting, of course.

And there's the exuberance to be seen on the shining faces of the children, never ever too old to revel in charting the perimeters of the synagogue waving flag-pierced apples in a raggedy line behind the Torah on that happiest of happy days, Simchat Torah.

There'll be Chanukah again this year, softly warming eight winter nights, light by light, easing us gently into the long cold months to follow.

And the brutious sounds of colourful, raucous Purim.

And just at the precise moment when we know for certain this climate is intolerable and we're all Mad as Hatters to be enduring it, just at that precise moment, over the crest of the snowbank at the end of the lawn, will come Pesach, bringing a scurry of activity and the promise of spring.

May will bud into fragrant beauty, and bring with it Shavuot. And it will be summer again.

Yes, school bells have rung out. And huge pots of chicken soup are already boiling in readiness for the holidays.

Ladies are madly combing the shops in search of the perfect chapeau to top the perfect ensemble.

Men are stealing time from the business of making a living, to be measured and fitted for Yom Tov suits.

And children are gazing with longing at the brand new "good clothes" hanging in their cupboards, itching for the moment they can finally put them on for Shul, and prance. Proud as peacocks.

The Year, Our Year, is about to begin.

The Violin-Maker's Gift

by Donn Kushner
Macmillan of Canada,
1980, cloth, $8.95
Reviewed by
Sharon L. Drache

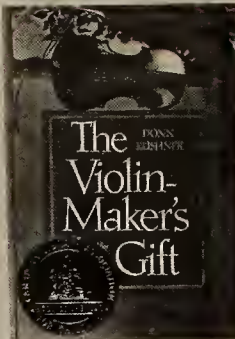

Winner of the Canadian Children's Librarian Association Book of the Year Award (1980), The Violin-Maker's Gift is a fable written for older children (ages ten and up), but the ingenious tale will also delight adult readers. For a change, a family book!

Primarily a story dealing with the consequences of one's actions, in particular "gift-giving", the tale successfully hides its moralizing beneath a sequence of fast-moving colourful happenings set in the French Pyrenees near the Spanish border in the 19th century.

The hero, Gaspard l'Innocent, a simple violin-maker, "The most modest and peaceful man you can imagine," rescues a bird from a church steeple in a town square where he has been selling his violins on market day. Immediately, Gaspard gives the bird to Matthias, retired Napoleonic soldier, now, official "toll-keeper" of the bridge Gaspard crosses to enter town in order to sell his violins. Matthias doesn't charge Gaspard for crossing, "No tax on violins," he rumbles, and hence Gaspard, in token of his appreciation, gives Matthias the bird.

Under Matthias' guardianship the bird grows more beautiful each day. Soon it acquires the ability to speak with an extensive vocabulary; it makes verse and predicts the future.

Matthias and his wife Babette take the bird on tour;

Award-Winning Fable

the couple wax rich. Gaspard is upset when he hears the bird is being dragged about the countryside to perform in hot dingy inns. So, he rescues the bird a second time. The bird is grateful but he tells Gaspard he cannot stay. He must return to the race of magic birds from which he came. Before he leaves, he rewards Gaspard by telling him how he can make violins that sing with a human voice. Once more a gift is given.

As the years pass, Gaspard succeeds in making several violins that sing with a human voice but this attribute does not last, though the violins do retain their smooth tones and elegant construction. Gaspard becomes rich but he also becomes old and crotchety. The bird as far as we know, is free and lives happily ever after.

On one level, the story is a highly imaginative saga with a host of unusual events; on another, the book comments on the "dark side" of life where the best intentions can meet with partial success or even failure.

Federal government to continue Jewish schools tax receipts

From the Canadian Jewish News

The status quo will be maintained by the federal government in granting tax receipts for religious studies in Jewish schools, William Rompkey, the Minister of Revenue, has announced.

Rompkey's decision on the matter was given in a statement to Sam Filer, National Chairman of Canadian Jewish Congress Executive.

It's good news for thousands of Jewish parents across Canada who feared financial hardship because of proposed changes which would have cut heavily into their tax deductions for Jewish school fees.

Rompkey's statement, as read to Filer last week went as follows: "Federal income tax provisions regarding the deduction of tuition fees paid for the religious portion of the instruction in Jewish schools, and for religious instruction given by other faiths in their school systems, will be maintained in their present form."

A happy Filer expressed his appreciation to Rompkey and officials in his department for their "sympathetic understanding" of the position taken by the CJC, and he has informed Congress leadership across Canada of the minister's decision to maintain the existing income tax circular.

CJC, led by Filer and Alan Rose, executive vice-president, and a group of lay and professional people, who Filer described as "excellent", had made representations to Rompkey since the news was announced in February that changes were in the air over tax breaks for religious school fees.

One of the central issues was the federal proposal to allocate third party funding equally to both religious and secular studies in the schools instead of just for the secular studies as is the case now.

Since charitable receipts at present can only be issued for tuition fees for religious studies, there was concern that if third party funding was applied to both secular and religious studies equally, the net effort would be to drive down the cost per pupil for religious education, thus reducing significantly the deductions for those religious studies.

On the other CJC concern over the federal government's proposal to redefine what constituted "religious" studies,

Filer said, he anticipates "no problems."

In the government proposal, foreign languages such as Hebrew and Jewish history were not to be considered "religious" but part of the secular program. But the CJC, Filer said, emphasized that Hebrew language, Jewish peoplehood and culture are an integral part of religious studies.

Tax deductibility for Jewish nursery schools is as yet unresolved and still subject to discussion, says Sam Filer, national chairman of Canadian Jewish Congress. A story in The CJN, Aug. 6, said Revenue Canada "indicated" it accepted the argument of Canadian Jewish Congress that Jewish religious instruction at the nursery school stage is part of the whole Jewish education system. The income tax information circular pertaining to the tax deductibility for religious school fees is actually silent on the matter of deductibility for Jewish nursery schools, says Filer.

The present Revenue Canada rules on tax deductibility for religious school fees have been in force since 1975, and are spelled out in income tax information Circular 75-23.

View from the Pulpit

The Uncivil War by Rabbi Dr. Reuven P. Bulka Congregation Machzikei Hadas

A short while ago, I viewed a spectacle on T.V. which left me shattered. A well-positioned camera-person captured some ugly scenes involving the Israeli police, who mercilessly and venomously kicked, punched, clubbed, and whipped their antagonists.

Who were the "lawbreakers"? Not suspected terrorists; not Palestinian Arabs; not PLO members. The lawbreakers were Jews, but a different class of Jews, the ultra-Orthodox.

The law enforcers were reacting to the latest episode in a seemingly endless confrontation between the secularists and the ultra-religious. This time the issue was an archaeological dig in an area where, according to the religious, Jewish bodies are interred. The digs are thus a desecration of the dead. As with so many other issues in this uncivil war, the situation has gone beyond the realm of reason into the emotional sphere. The emotions, as per usual, are out of control.

One suspects that the issue in this immediate conflict has a particular symbolism. The religionists see the archaeologists as scientists trying to dig up, and uproot sacred traditions, traditions which they consider as inviolable as human corpses.

Precisely the mutually antagonistic perceptions of each other have built an increasingly volatile wall of hostility between these factions. To the religious, the secularists stand for all that is anathema in Israel; they are the embodiment of all that is spiritually corrupt and which must be eliminated. To the secularists, the ultra-religious are a gang of terrorists attempting to foist their sectarian extremism onto the Israeli public.

The recent elections have done little to assuage the antagonistic feelings. The perception that the so-called religious bloc is holding the country at ransom as a precondition for supporting the government only exacerbates an already dismal situation. The police, then, were not merely carrying out their mandate. They were probably venting their frustration and hostilities, and likely that of many Israelis.

The shame of the situation is that the enmity involving the extremist elements does not adequately reflect Israeli reality. Whether or not one agrees with their views, the religious community has thrust itself onto the Israeli scene as never before. They are involved not only in political, social, and religious issues; they are also in the front lines defending Israel's borders and placing themselves and their families in the newest settlements. Their unyielding conviction concerning Israel enables them to be oblivious to the threatening perils. All this has immeasurably enhanced Israel's security.

Why, then, the religious-secular enmity? In a sense, the syndrome involved is somewhat akin to the evolution of anti-semitism. The anti-semitic caricaturizes one Jew as evil incarnate, and then slots every Jew into that caricature. All Jews are the same, says the hater. All religious Jews are the same, says the "not-so-religious" Jew, and anyone to the left of "not-so-religious."

This caricature, like most others, is simply off-base. The anti-Israel feeling and behaviour exhibited by a vocal, extreme minority, is as much an embarrassment for the general religious community as it is repulsive to them and to Jews everywhere.

It is unfortunate that this high-profile venom should obscure the great strides toward mutual understanding which are developing between the religious and the "not-so-religious" community.

Concerning so vital a component of Jewish life as Shabbat, there are many who do not hide behind existing legislation to wash their hands from the community. Instead, they share their knowledge, feelings, and experience, opening their homes and hearts to fellow Israelis. What Shabbat is imposed, it breeds animosity and contempt; when it is lived in a harmonious fellowship, it breeds friendship, understanding, and communal rapport.

For a community or country to have its radical fringe is a price we pay for democracy. For that radical fringe to dictate, even to distort, and to obstruct the desired communal harmony from evolving, is a price we cannot afford to pay.

The time before Rosh Hashanah is most appropriate for directing our attention to those trends and movements which are binding Jews together in a common fellowship, with a common cause and a common destiny.

Beth Shalom West brunch on Sept. 3

Beth Shalom West is holding a Family Brunch on Sunday, September 13, at 10:00 a.m. at Sir John A. MacDonald High School at Greenbank Road/Baseline Road.

The Brunch is designed as an informal opportunity for current Beth Shalom West members and families who may be interested in joining the Congregation as Full Members or Associate Members, to meet to discuss plans for the Satellite for the coming year. Members of the community at large who may be unfamiliar with the concept of a Satellite Synagogue are especially urged to attend.

A special Children's Program has been arranged for during the discussion session following the Brunch.

For further information call Stan Wilder at 820-1878, or Julian Lewin at 828-0286.

Note: The menu is a Jack Smith Special (smoked fish and the works), no reservations are necessary. Adults $5 each, children free.

Non-Jews leading members of Prime Minister's Club

The Israel Prime Minister's Club is an honor society of men and women all over the free world who earn a special place of leadership in building the economy of Israel by investing $25,000 or more in Israel Bonds annually.

Nowhere is this all-encompassing and international scope of the club so graphically brought into focus as in the Maryland chapter of the honor society. For it was in Maryland that the first black P.M.C. member, Allen Quille of Baltimore, and the first Chinese P.M.C. member, King P. Koo of Hong Kong, were enrolled.

Both climbed out of the depths of poverty to the pinnacle of business success. Both had little or no schooling.

From 35-cent car washes in Baltimore, Allen Quille built a parking lot empire of 22 garages, having started in the parking lot business at the age of 17 with Charlie Malpas, a German Jew. In addition to the garages, Quille also has business interests in a fuel oil company, real estate developments and an automobile agency.

As a member of the Prime Minister's Club, Quille was a delegate to the 1979 Prime Minister's Conference in Israel where he met with Prime Minister Begin and other top Israeli government leaders.

Presently an Associate Chairman of the Maryland Committee for Israel Bonds, Quille has been active in the Bond campaign since its inception in 1951 and was honored at an Israel Bond dinner in 1971 in Baltimore at which Mr. Begin was the principal speaker.

When asked why he enrolled as a Prime Minister's Club member, he said:

"Today, the Middle East appears to be merely a Jewish problem, but if you and I don't keep Israel economically strong, tomorrow it may very well become the whole world's problem. By bolstering Israel's economy, I help preserve Israel, a nation of the highest ideals and a shining light of freedom unto the world. Some day, the pages of Israel's history will tell of the vital role played by the Prime Minister's Club in the early years of that nation."

Mr. Koo is President of Tak Sing Hong International Exporters, Ltd., a group of importing/exporting and manufacturing companies as well as commission agents. He comes from a poor farming family in Shanghai; started work at 15 as a menial laborer and migrated at 17 to Hong Kong where he worked as a seaman.

In 1946, Mr. Koo started his own import/export business in San Francisco. Three years later, he came to Hong Kong where he began a similar business. He branched out into the knitwear trade, as well as gloves, hardware and plastics, and then broadened his horizons by entering the real estate business. Today his holdings extend from Hong Kong to Australia to Honolulu and to California.

In 1971, Mr. Koo and his family settled in Australia where they gained citizenship. He was inducted into the Knights of Malta in 1979 as Sir King P. Koo, Knight of Merit.

In order to express his gratitude to Raymond L. Cohen of Baltimore and his many other Jewish friends throughout the world, Mr. Koo has enrolled as a Prime Minister's Club member.

When he originally enrolled, he declared, "My people were displaced from our mainland home so I know how badly we needed a haven — a place to go. My sympathy goes to the Jewish people who have every right to their Biblical and rightful homeland."

He added, "By becoming a member of the Prime Minister's Club, I can meaningfully help build the Israel which so many have dreamed of for so long — an Israel at peace."

Allen Quille and King P. Koo symbolize those concerned citizens, Jewish and non-Jewish, who, through enrolling in the Israel Bond Prime Minister's Club, demonstrate their awareness of the importance of Israel as an inspiring example of dynamic democracy in a key area of the world.

Zelda Roodman

Herman Roodman

Roodmans establish an Endowment Fund

Zelda and Herman Roodman have recently established an endowment fund and have designated that the proceeds be used to expand a specified Section of the Library at the Hebrew University. The Section was inaugurated in their name in 1973.

Both Zelda and Herman were born in Ottawa. Their parents, the late Max and Miriam Dworkin and the late Louis and Freda Roodman, were pioneers of the Ottawa Jewish Community. Through the years, they have been actively identified with numerous communal endeavours.

Zelda is a Past President of the Ottawa Council of Hadassah and Herman is a Past President of the Men's Zionist Society. Both were active with the Adath Jeshurun Synagogue. Herman is a former member of the Beth Shalom Board of Governors.

Herman was the first Director of the Hanoar Study and Breakfast Club of Ottawa. Both were involved for a number of years as Supervisors of the Ottawa Hebrew Sunday School and as Directors of diversified youth activities. Their careers have been largely devoted to the field of education.

Herman and Zelda spent eighteen years at Carleton University where they lectured principally in Management Studies and Communication Skills. Herman is the former Chief of Education, Training and Development in the Department of the Secretary of State. For several years

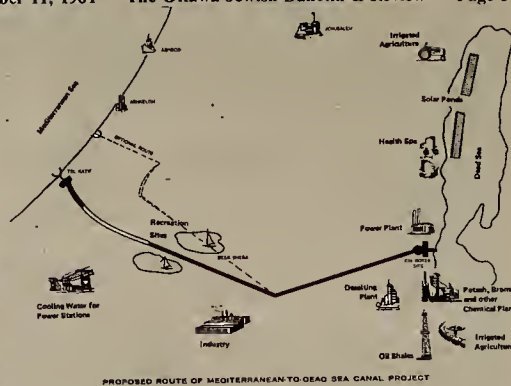

Zelda was involved in Management Education with the Bureau of Staff Development, Public Service Commission. Zelda was formerly a Supervisor of Continuing Education in the Business Division of Algonquin College. At present she is a Professor in Management Studies with that Institution.

Herman is now the President of his own Management Development Company and is mainly engaged in conducting seminars in human resources management and organization development.

In 1964, their first book, "Effective Business Communication" was published by McGraw-Hill Ryerson Company. Zelda and Herman co-authored their second book on "Management By Communication", which was published in 1973 by the Carswell-Methuen Company of Canada. Both these books have been used extensively at various high schools, colleges and universities as well as in the private and public sectors.

Mr. and Mrs. Roodman have one daughter, Joy Esther, who is married to Richard Wayne Karp. They are the proud grandparents of Shaun and Ursula.

The Officers and Directors of the Ottawa Jewish Community Foundation welcome the establishment of the "Herman and Zelda Roodman Endowment Fund" which is open-ended. Family and friends may add to it at any time.

High increase in energy potential

On May 28, 1981, ground breaking ceremonies inaugurated the construction of the new canal linking the Mediterranean and the Dead Sea. It will be the most ambitious engineering project attempted in the Holy Land since Herod The Great renovated the second Jewish Temple 2,000 years ago. In modern times, only the digging of the Suez Canal, begun in 1859 can compare to it.

When it is completed, Israel will be far less dependent on outside sources for energy.

In January, 1981, a special delegation of Israel Bond leaders visited the proposed project site and undertook, on behalf of the Israel Bond Organization, to provide the "seed money" of $100 million to launch the project. The $100 million is in addition to the Bond Organization's goal of $450 million in 1981, which it has pledged to provide through the Development Budget for the country's economic project. The anticipated cost of the project is $800 million.

Gravitational flow will be exploited to send Mediterranean waters plunging to the level of the Dead Sea, a drop of 1500 feet. The envisaged conduit is part tunnel, part canal. It incorporates an intake canal on the Mediterranean, a pumping station on the western slopes of the Negev hills, a 40-mile long tunnel through the mountain range, a system of reservoirs and an underground hydro-electric power station at Har Yair, a mountain peak overlooking the Dead Sea.

The canal will generate enough hydro-electric power to provide one-third of Israel's energy requirements for the year 2000. In addition, it will make possible the construction of a nuclear power plant and the exploitation of shale-oil reserves, as both enterprises are dependent on huge amounts of water.

Feasibility studies concerning the nuclear plant have ruled out all locations along the Mediterranean Sea for environmental reasons. But the canal will bring enough water to a remote site for a plant slated to produce 1,000 megawatts of electricity. Since Israel's current generating capacity is 2,000 megawatts, that is a significant chunk.

The shale-oil reserves, only recently discovered, amount to 2 billion metric tons in the Negev and constitute the most important future element in Israel's war against dependence on foreign oil.

The Mediterranean-Dead Sea Canal was first outlined by Theodor Herzl 80 years ago in his novel "Altneuland".

An ever-expanding group of Canal Founders, purchasers of $100,000 in Bonds over and above their normal purchase, have been enrolled. Purchases by Canal Founders will be earmarked for the canal project and those enrolling as Canal Founders will have their names inscribed on a special plaque at the site of the canal and will receive a mounted metal bas-relief of the projected reservoirs of the Mediterranean-Dead Sea Canal Energy Project.

Nissen Chackowicz

JSU-Hillel Coordinator

Nissen Chackowicz is the new staff coordinator of JSU-Hillel.

Originally from Montreal, Nissen was active in Montreal's prolific Hahonim youth movement and later spent a year and a half living in Israel. Upon his return he taught Jewish History at Bialik High School in Montreal for three years, and studied at the Jewish Theological Seminary of America where he received his M.A. in Jewish History.

Nissen is looking forward to his new position where he can continue his group work, Judaic and pedagogical skills.

His wife, Deborah R. Cohen is presently enrolled in second year Medicine at the University of Ottawa.

The Jewish Students' Union was originally formed in 1974 and is now active on the campuses of Carleton University, University of Ottawa and Algonquin College.

The J.S.U. evolved from a fledgling student group into a recognized Jewish student organization experienced in providing on and off campus programs for Jews of University age.

In the academic year 1980-81 JSU-Hillel promoted forty programs which attracted over 1800 participants.

J.C.C. is launching ambitious city-wide membership campaign

Ron Prehogan, Chairman of the Centre's Membership Committee, recently announced that the 1981-82 Membership Recruitment Campaign will take the form of city-wide Parlour Meetings at which participants will be able to discuss Centre programs, services and membership.

An audiovisual program which provides information on the J.C.C. has been especially prepared for these gatherings. Each meeting will provide an opportunity for participants to converse with J.C.C. volunteers and professionals about all aspects of the Centre.

Mr. Prehogan is confident the format will encourage fruitful discussion as well as present an opportunity for people to meet in an informal and social manner.

This year the campaign will also be highlighted by the designation of September 19 as J.C.C. Shabbat by all Ottawa Synagogues. This is the first time in the history of the Centre that such overwhelming support has been extended by the congregations specifically for its membership purposes.

Community members interested in attending the Parlour Meetings should contact Larry Szpirglas, the Centre's Executive Director (232-7306).

serving community needs over the past few years, the product of Centre membership has improved dramatically.

A cursory review of last year's Program Guide (30th Anniversary Edition) describing the wide range of available programs for all ages would support this statement. In spite of this, new programming is constantly being introduced and existing programming upgraded to meet community needs not only at 151 Chapel Street but at various other locations across the City as well.

It is believed that the J.C.C. has recently turned the corner in terms of the community's perception of it. People are beginning to find that the Centre is not only functioning but thriving in its programming, thanks in large measure to the dedication of its hard-working professional staff. For those readers who have yet to "discover" today's J.C.C., I urge you to attend one of the parlour meetings listed on this page.

Today's Ottawa Jewish Community Centre offers constantly upgraded programming

By Ronald Prehogan
As Chairman of the J.C.C. Membership Committee, I have been asked to share some of my thoughts and feelings about the Centre and its position in the community. Rather than taking up this space to extol the many virtues of Centre membership, I have decided instead to base this article on a statistic which I hope you will find as alarming as I did.

Recent Survey No Surprise

A recent survey of Jewish Community Centres and YMWHA's across North America conducted by the National Jewish Welfare Board reveals a conclusion which in itself should not come as much of a surprise. That is, the smaller a Jewish community is in terms of numbers, the greater is the percentage of Jews in such community who are members of a Jewish Community Centre or YMWHA.

Although there may be a number of reasons for this conclusion, perhaps the most compelling is the fact that a smaller, more integrated Jewish community has a greater need to congregate at such a facility than in cities where the so-called Jewish ghettos prevail.

In 1978, the average number of Centre members compared to Jewish population size throughout North America for cities of comparable size to Ottawa was 48%. In Ottawa, the figure was approximately 10%. That's right, one out of every ten Jews in Ottawa was a member of the J.C.C. (Although there has been consistent improvement since then, the percentage has not yet significantly improved.) For a community which takes pride in its strength and continuity, this should be a source of some embarrassment and concern.

J.C.C. a Community Institution

The Jewish Community Centre is, after all, the focal point of our communal endeavours. Its mandate is and has been to function as an institution whose major objective is to enhance Jewish identity through social, cultural, recreational and educational programs, activities and services. It is the only institution of its kind in Ottawa. Even the Jew who remains under the misapprehension that the Centre has little to offer must shudder at the thought of its possible extinction. While there appears to be no immediate threat of such an occurrence, one need only consider the ever-increasing demands of the State of Israel and the numerous local agencies on the U.J.A. dollar coupled with gloomy economic conditions and minimal membership revenues to envision the possibility of at least some very serious cutbacks to J.C.C. programming.

New Developments

This would, of course, be tragic, especially in light of recent developments. Until a few years ago, there was apparently a general perception within the community that there was very little happening at the Centre. Whether this perception was justified or not is no longer relevant. What is important is that due to the J.C.C.'s strong commitment to programming and otherwise

Fitness class ends season on happy note

By Doreen Keir

The Island Park home of Diana Lebrun was the party setting for the 9th season closing of the West-End Rhythmic Fitness class.

The rain during the week of May 28 did not dampen the spirits of the ladies as one group took off on a walk-jog through the park area while another shook the house with enthusiastic movements as they followed the "Keep Fit at Home" record. Before feasting on the sumptuous salads and accompaniments, the ladies prepared for the intake of calories by yet another fitness break.

The customary attendance awards were presented and the top lady of the year was Queenie Cohen with Belle Eckstein and Ann Gillies at the top as well.

The "extra activities award" for "More in March" was won by Tania Firestone who was also honoured by the Jewish Community Centre for winning the "Spring into Action" trophy. Louise Cloutier presented Tanya with the trophy for accumulating 93 points, the highest number of all fitness classes. Sixteen other West-End members will receive crests for their efforts in gaining 26 or more points by taking part in various physical activities.

In the "Lose & Win" department, a number of lost pounds were recorded with Catherine Hart and Marjorie Lane winning the lucky draw: The "Ladies Great Ride for Cancer" will be the recipient of the money left in the Fat Fund.

As we enter our 10th year in September, great appreciation is extended to the hard-working Fitness Committee headed by our capable Ethel Taylor along with charter members Malca Polowin and Mollie Goldie. With the help of many other members the necessary impetus has been maintained for sustaining interest in the worthwhile effort in keeping fit.

The continued interest and unceasing support of Ron Boro and the J.C.C. staff has also been an important factor in the success of the West-End program.

A summer fitness course was successfully led by Rhoda Bodnoff during June and July for members wishing to maintain their fitness in a structured class.

Other members are keeping physically active at cottages, golf courses, tennis courts, on bicycle paths and walking trails but will resume the fitness class on Tuesday, September 8.

Over 60 Ottawa Campers enjoyed the spirit of Geshet. All the chanichim enjoyed many activities including: waterskiing, swimming, canoeing, arts and crafts, as well as the Judiac-Zionist programming. Along with regular programming, Camp Geshetites experienced "The War of the Worlds", Jews Around the World Day, and Israel day — including the bombing of a Nuclear Reactor.

Parents day arrived and all the chanichim were in high spirits, dancing and singing such tunes as "Yiheyeh Tov" and "Ani V'ata".

The second half started with a bang as well as Shichvah Bet went to Maccabiah at Carillon Park. Geshet exhibited great ruach and amazing skills in constructing "THE EX-ODUS". Geshet was awarded the prize for excellence in tzofit technique (scouting) for our tzofit project.

Camp Geshet is just one part of the year-round movement Dror-Habonim. Dror-Ottawa will continue to keep the spirit of Geshet alive year-long.

Athletes bring home 3 Maccabiah medals

By Mark Buckshon
Ottawa athletes Bill Holzman and Michael Zunder have returned home from the Maccabiah Games in Israel with medals and memories — and a greater sense of their Jewish heritage.

They also discovered the excitement of international competition, and the contrasts, problems and hopes of Israel — which they had never seen before.

The golfer and the runner were among the top place finishers of some 3,500 competitors from around the world at the Olympic-style games July 6-16 and they brought home a bronze and two silver medals.

"It's two weeks to participate and a lifetime to remember," said Bill, a 23-year-old championship golfer. He won a bronze medal in individual competition, and the six-man Canadian team won a silver.

Michael, 17, and three other Canadian runners came second in the 4 x 100 metre relay. The Hillcrest High School student also placed fourth in the 400 metre hurdles and 4 x 400 metre relay.

Both recalled the excitement of marching into Israel's Ramat Gan Stadium with some 110 other Canadian athletes for the opening ceremonies. A crowd of 55,000 cheered the contestants from 30 countries, as Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin and other dignitaries arrived to mark the start of the 11th Maccabiah.

"Tears came to my eyes and to most of the others," Michael said. "I couldn't describe it in words. It's a very good feeling."

Bill, who has won many local golf tournaments and attended Austin Peay State University in Tennessee on a golf scholarship, said he tried to keep calm as he prepared for the competition. "I just kept saying to myself, 'It's just a game.'"

"But you start to mix with the other athletes and you realize this isn't an (ordinary) golf tournament."

"I can't believe these people are Jewish," he said, recalling meeting his colleagues from around the world. "From France, Argentina, Brazil...I can't believe these guys are Jewish."

Besides meeting other athletes, the two Ottawa competitors had an opportunity to travel around Israel, seeing the contrast of wealth and poverty, old and new, and the tension of years of conflict.

"It's a whole different way of life," Michael said. "You've got to mature much faster. They go into the army at 18." He said he found it hard to imagine people near his age carrying and using military weapons.

Bill said he was on the green at the resort hotel 50 miles north of Tel Aviv used for the golf events, when he heard what sounded like sonic booms.

They were actually bombs as the Israelis raided Palestinian bases in Syria.

But the athletes found more peaceful moments, visiting places such as Masada and the Wailing Wall, and discovering how the Israelis enjoy life.

"It kind of hit you," Michael said. "A lot of people on the team were Jewish but didn't practice it. You really discover your religion, yourself, how you feel as a Jew," he said.

Nazi victims restitution

The United Restitution Organization (URO) in Montreal is helping Jewish victims of Nazi persecution, who left Eastern Europe after 1965 and settled in Canada, may be eligible for a grant from the Claims Conference Hardship Fund.

The Claims Conference Hardship Fund was established with German Government appropriations, and will be distributed by the Conference on Jewish Material Claims Against Germany in accordance with German Government Guidelines. The Guidelines limit individual grants to D.M. 5,000 (Five Thousand Deutsche Marks) per person.

The Claims Conference Hardship Fund is intended primarily to handle applications from such Jewish victims of Nazi persecution who left Eastern Europe after 1965 when the deadline for filing claims under the German indemnification laws expired: Other persecutees who failed, for very valid reasons, to file timely claims in the past years may also apply to the Hardship Fund.

Applications may be obtained by writing to the V.R.O. at 279 Sherbrooke St. West, Montreal. They must be filed before December 31, 1981. U.R.O.'s telephone number is 514-844-2821. The office is open Monday through Thursday, from 9:00 to 12:00 o'clock.

Rabbi assumes pulpit at Agudath Israel

The President of the Agudath Israel Congregation, Jacie Levinson, has announced the appointment of Rabbi Arnold Fine as spiritual leader of the congregation.

Born in Worcester, Mass. in 1938, Rabbi Fine comes to Ottawa from Sharon where he was Executive Director of the Associated Synagogues of Massachusetts, the Massachusetts Board of Rabbis, and Coordinator, Jewish Chaplaincy Council, from 1975-80. At the same time, he also served as Rabbi, on a part-time basis, at Temple Adath Sharon, Sharon, Ma.

From 1966-68 he held the position of Rabbi at the Tree of Life Synagogue, Uniontown, Pa. and from 1968-75 was Rabbi of Beth Jacob Synagogue, Norwich, Ct.

Rabbi Fine received his Rabbinic degree from the Jewish Theological Seminary of America in 1966, and is currently a candidate for the degree of Doctor of Hebrew Literature from that institution.

He has also studied at The Hebrew University in Jerusalem, 1960-61, '64-'65.

He has had a colourful

Rabbi Arnold Fine

career, and has been involved in many community activities including youth programs, teaching, working with the aged, interfaith and kashrut programs.

Rabbi Fine is a member of The National Rabbinic Council of the United Jewish Appeal, Chairman of the Task Force on Education, Synagogue Federation committee of Combined Jewish Philanthropies, and others.

An avid cyclist and amateur radio operator, he is married to the former Charlene ("Shevy") Milson. The couple has four children, ranging in age from 6-16.

Notes for Seniors

By Marlene Cherun, M.S.W.
Jewish Social Services of Ottawa-Carleton

Reuben Lightstone would like to share with you the opportunity to learn a new skill or perhaps to refresh an old one. Ballroom Dance Practice takes place every Monday afternoon from 1:30 p.m. until 3:00 p.m. at the RA Centre at 2451 Riverside Drive, in the Bytown Room. Singles and couples are most welcome, and there is no fee. This program is sponsored by RA Seniors. For information, call 729-1359 or 828-3924.

Also for your information, if you are having problems with your lease or your landlord, there is an office set up to help. This is the Residential Tenancy Commission at 265 Carling Avenue. The telephone number is 566-3747 and the staff will do its best to help you.

Adults for Lively Leisure

Dr. Mark August began his Chairmanship of A.L.L. on July 9. His executive includes Frances Shaffer, Secretary, and Sarah Torontow, Treasurer. This capable group will work with the members and staff to expand the scope of the Club. The new schedule of events will be published soon. Frances Shaffer has more day trips planned and would welcome suggestions or requests. You can contact Frances at 722-4115.

Pearl Greenberg has undertaken the planning and coordination of longer trips for seniors. If you wish to be Miami-bound next winter, the Shore Club Family has already laid plans for our February 1982 (4 weeks) holiday in Miami Beach.

A three day bus tour to New York City from October 9 to 12, is being planned. The tentative price of this tour package is $169.00. For information about these and other travel plans for seniors, please call Pearl Greenberg at 829-9721.

Seminar on Israeli Politics a Success

The Adult Leisure Club's first attempt at offering an educational seminar was highly successful. Thirty-four people met with Professor Gabriel Ben-Dor at the Agudath Israel Synagogue to examine the issues raised by Israel's recent actions.

Professor Ben-Dor examined the forces operating in returning the Likud to power and gave his analysis of possible future developments. A lively question period followed.

The Adults for Lively Leisure Group meets regularly at the Agudath Israel Synagogue and welcomes new members. For information about upcoming programs or to get on to the A.L.L. mailing list, call 238-6351.

A.L.L. is a program co-sponsored by the Jewish Social Services and the Jewish Community Centre.

Upcoming Events to Note:
September 3: A.L.L.

Israeli kids are bright

Special challenges in the school system? Israel has 25,000, and is delighted with every one of them.

Education Ministry Statistics show that Israel's elementary and high school population contains a large number of exceptionally bright children. According to the data, 25,000 pupils between the ages of six and seventeen have an I.Q. of 130 or more — a level which officially places them in the category of gifted youngsters. In order to provide them with appropriate instruction, the Ministry has devised high enrichment programs, special classes and a variety of unique educational activities. Fully 65% of the budding geniuses are boys, and 5,000 study in the Arab sector.

The Jewish presence in Japan — a single orthodox community

By Peter K. Whimster
The Jewish presence in Kobe, Japan, has intrigued me ever since a friend mentioned she had heard a small community existed there. In October, 1980, I visited Kobe and actually spoke to some of these people face to face.

What Would I Find?

During the short train ride from Osaka I wondered what I would find: a loosely-knit group of Japanese-speaking Jewish families soon to be completely assimilated? Japanese converts to Judaism, perhaps? European Jews much like those who settled in China and Manchuria before World War II?

The desk clerk at Kobe's New Port Hotel provided me with a map on which he had circled the Japanese symbols for "Jewish House of Worship". After an hour-long walk, I reached the modern, well-maintained building. No one answered when I rang the doorbell, so I crossed the street and walked down a row of comfortable townhouses, to where there were Ashkenazi names written in the Latin alphabet and Japanese syllables beside every door.

After knocking at each house and getting no response, I took a picture of the synagogue and started back, disappointed, toward my hotel, knowing that I would be returning to Tokyo the next day.

I then spotted an elderly European woman walking toward me, and told her of my predicament. She identified herself as a Dutch missionary and took me to the Kobe Club, a meeting place for the local foreign community. It was there I was given the names and telephone numbers I needed to resume the search.

The Story of the Kobi Jews

This is the story of the Jews in Kobe as told to me by two independent pearl traders, Mr. Josue and Mr. Dzemal:

Kobe, 20 miles west of Osaka and about 250 miles west of Tokyo, is one of Japan's two major ports. It is a long, narrow city with an east-west axis, its expansion northward limited by a range of steep hills. There has been a Jewish community in Kobe for at least 50 years, and its first members were mostly Ashkenazi Jews from Russia.

Shortly after World War II, Sephardim from Lebanon and Syria joined the remnants of the original group.

The Community Worships Together

The Ashkenazim and Sephardim there have always worshipped together as one Orthodox community, and today, numbering about 100 people, they constitute the second largest group of Jews in Japan, after Tokyo. (Before World War II, the Ashkenazim and Sephardim in Tokyo had separate synagogues, but they too have since combined to form one group.)

Most Are Not Citizens

Except for one Japanese married to a Jewish man, the members of the community are not Japanese citizens and seem to have a much better knowledge of English than of Japanese.

Independent Pearl Traders

Although there are some employees of Israel's Zim Steamship Line temporarily posted in Kobe, most of the Jews there make their living as small independent pearl traders. Since the early 1970's however, their businesses have suffered as Japan's huge trading companies, such as Mitsubishi, have entered the market.

It is said that the sons and daughters of the community almost invariably leave Japan for their education and do not return there to live.

Happy Event To Take Place

But a happy and hopeful event was to take place in Kobe two days after I left. A rabbi was to arrive from Seoul, Korea, to officiate at a Jewish wedding.

No Signs of Giving Up Faith

The Josues, Dzemals, Sassoons and Paleys of Kobe were showing no signs of giving up their struggle to keep their community and their faith alive in this far corner of the diaspora.

Great season at B'nai B'rith

By Morley Mason
Director, Camp B'nai B'rith of Ottawa

This 1981 camp season has to have been one of the most successful in the camp's long history.

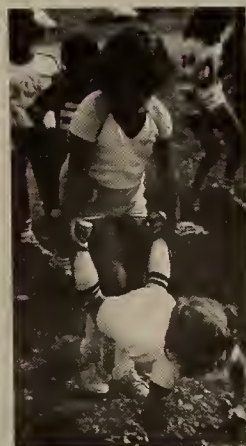

Camp B'nai B'rith's forte is activity. We boast a great variety of worthwhile programs for over 350 campers.

Because we are blessed with excellent facilities, we use these facilities to the utmost. Our activities range from the very active to a variety of more passive programs. The children in our camp thrive on all-day activity.

This past summer we had campers and staff from as far away as Florida.

Some of the highlights of our summer '81 were: an Israeli day run by our two schlicim; four All-Camp Programs, culminating in Colour War; two major dramatic productions, (ask the parents of the players about the quality!); waterfront activities ranging from swimming to wind-surfing, as well as exciting events like "aquatic capture-the-flag."

Space permits only a brief description of all that makes up Camp B'nai B'rith. Should you wish further information, please feel free to contact me at 825-3067.

King of Kensington B'nai B'rith speaker

One of Canada's most popular and versatile entertainers, Al Waxman, CBC's "King of Kensington" will be guest speaker at a breakfast jointly sponsored by Ottawa, Parliament and Bytown Lodges of B'nai B'rith, on September 27.

The breakfast will be held at the Jewish Community Centre at 10:00 a.m. All B'nai B'rith members and guests, as well as other members of the community, are warmly welcomed by the lodges to attend this "royal" and highly-entertaining breakfast-meeting.

In addition to his popularity as an entertainer, Al Waxman has received recognition as a community and charity worker in many fields, including the United Jewish Appeal. He has also been active in such organizations as the United Way, the Variety Club of Ontario, and the Kidney Foundation.

Al Waxman is also National Chairman of the Canadian Cancer Society and Honorary Big Brother for life. He was proclaimed Spiritual Father of the Year in 1980 by the Pioneer Women and has received the Community Involvement Award from the Volunteer Centre of Metropolitan Toronto in recognition of his outstanding volunteer service to the city.

The CBC series, "King of Kensington" catapulted Waxman to the level of a superstar in Canada. In 1976 he won an

Al Waxman

ACTRA Award for his performance as "King", and in 1977 was awarded the Queen's Silver Jubilee Medal by Governor General Jules Léger.

He is also an outstanding director with assignments including a one-hour episode for the CBC's spy-thriller series, "The Phoenix Team" and a one-hour drama entitled "The Abortion Issue".

The B'nai B'rith Breakfast provides all members of the Ottawa Jewish Community a unique opportunity to meet this outstanding Canadian. It promises to be a highlight among the many activities planned by the lodges during the year ahead.

Tickets are $5 each, and available from Lew Perelmutter — 224-6306, Morris Presser — 820-2492, and Syd Marko — 523-3831.

Hospital establishes a new "Canadian Wing"

Dr. David Maier, Director General of the Shaare Zedek Medical Center in Jerusalem has announced that the seventh floor of the hospital has been named the "Canadian Wing" in recognition and appreciation of the support from its many Canadian friends.

The first facility in the newly-named wing is the Mel and Marilyn Lastman Department of Surgery, for which funds are currently being raised in Toronto. Established in honour of the Mayor of North York and his wife, the department serves pre- and post-operative patients.

Other services located on the seventh floor are the large division of Obstetrics and Gynecology, the Delivery Suite, the Department of Urology, the Maternity Department, the Neonatology and Neonatal Intensive Care Units.

"We are very honoured by this gesture," said Sam Blank of Toronto, national president of the Canadian Shaare Zedek Hospital Foundation. "Rather than permitting us to simply rest on our laurels, this is certain to inspire us to work even harder for the hospital."

The national office of the Foundation is in Toronto, with chapters in Montreal, Vancouver, Winnipeg, Edmonton and Calgary.

Among the Ottawa residents who visited the Shaare Zedek

Medical Center this year were Robert G. Dale, Elaine Friedberg, Barbara Greenberg, Joel Greenberg and Eric Siminovich.

Shira opens on Sept. 14

Shira Playgroup has opened registration for its 1981-82 season which begins September 14.

The co-operative pre-school program, led by a qualified educator, accepts children aged two to 3 1/2 years old. Teacher Connie Strickland has been hired to staff the playgroup this year.

Shira combines free play and structured group times. Mothers are involved directly in the program on a rotating duty basis. Love and understanding of Jewish customs and holidays is fostered. Because of parental involvement it is possible to create a close tie between what is taught at home and in the Shira program.

The playgroup operates Monday and Wednesday mornings from 9:30 to 11:30 at Champlain Park Community Centre off Island Park Dr. and the Ottawa River Parkway.

For information and registration please call Bev at 729-0561.

An Oneg Shabbat at Talmud Torah Afternoon School Kindergarten.

School now registering

Talmud Torah Afternoon School registration is open for the 1981-82 school year.

Applications are being accepted for the Special Education class, Kindergarten and Grades 1 through 7, as well as Grade 8 and Extension Talmud Torah. Placement at the higher levels is at the discretion of the Principal.

The Talmud Torah Afternoon School operates for the benefit of parents who have opted for public school training for their children yet have strong commitment to traditional values.

Subjects taught include Hebrew Language, Prayer, Laws and Customs, Bible, History, Israel and Current Events. Bar/Bat Mitzvah training is also provided as part of the curriculum. There are no extra fees involved.

Students receive the knowledge required to carry into practice home observances, and the ability to participate in synagogue services for weekday and Sabbath as well as the holidays. They learn to read Hebrew fluently and become thoroughly acquainted with Hebrew script.

It is the school's intention that each child receive a sense of identity and feeling of kinship with Jews all over the world and in Eretz Yisroel. To this end, not only is the child introduced to the State of Israel, its culture and its history, but he is also made aware of the current events which affect Israel and Judaism throughout the world.

Classes are held in the school area adjoining Agudath Israel Synagogue, 1400 Coldevy Avenue.

Instruction times are: Kindergarten, Grade 1 and Special Education classes meet Sunday mornings from 9:30 to 11:45 a.m.;

Grades 2 through 7 meet three times a week, Sunday mornings as above and Tuesdays and Thursdays from 4:15 to 6:15 p.m.;

Grade 8 and Extension Talmud Torah meet Wednesday evenings from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m.

Bar/Bat Mitzvah classes meet on Mondays.

The first day of classes will be on Sunday, September 13, at 9:30 a.m.

For further information, to receive a brochure or an application form, call: Mrs. Elizabeth Wolynetz, Principal, Talmud Torah Afternoon School, 728-1759 (office) or 725-3450 (home).

Mark 60th anniversary of arrival of war orphans from Ukraine to Canadian homes

By Gaye Applebaum

August 21 marked the 60th anniversary of the arrival of the ship carrying Ukrainian Jewish orphans to new lives in Canada. Much of the research and background information, below was provided by the Ottawa Jewish Historical Society and in particular by its president, Hugo Levendel.

Quebec City: Early morning; rain. Saturday, August 21, 1921. One hundred and eight frightened Yiddish-speaking Ukrainian Jewish orphans aboard the S.S. Scandinavian try to remain in line for their last medical.

But all are tense with excitement as they hungrily search the faces of the large crowd gathered on the dock for their arrival.

Many in the crowd are about to become adopting parents of orphans between four and 12 years of age, victims of massive Ukrainian pogroms. Those on the dock are as nervous as the children they will adopt.

For Dr. Joseph Leavitt and Harry Hershman of Montreal and William Farrar of Hamilton, the arrival in Quebec is all the more miraculous considering the often insurmountable difficulties they faced during their six month sojourn in the Polish Ukraine.

Quebec the group parted for their communities. Mrs. Freiman took 21 to Montreal and Ottawa. Hershman led 55 to Toronto and western Ontario. Meyer Budovitch accompanied 16 to St. John, N.B. and Hattie Silverman took 12 west to Winnipeg. (Four orphans were Belgians brought to Canada to join relatives). The Freimans, Pierces and Hershmans all adopted children.

Awesome New Lives Begin

For Yentele, an outgoing girl of nine whose shock of golden curls had been saved by her wits from the orphanage's shears, and for Moshe, a shy 10 year old, it was the awesome beginning of their lives as Ruth and Michael, one in Ottawa, the other in Montreal. Clutching identity papers with newly assigned birthdays, they met their new parents, Ida and Louis Davis, Ella and Asher Pierce. They would never again suffer the kind of privation they had known all their lives.

Like the others, Yentele and Moshe left the years of suffering and starvation behind when they landed on Canadian soil. Deliberately wary of anyone seeking to delve into their early lives, they regarded their Ukrainian past as painfully closed.

Of the 146 who eventually arrived (the 42 who had been left in Antwerp came in four successive groups over the next five months), 34 were reunited with Canadian relatives who had sought out the orphans. Four families adopted siblings. There was one death in Toronto in 1923. Nine, never adopted because of age and personal problems were maintained by the Winnipeg, Toronto and Montreal communities.

How the Project Began

How did such a project come to fruition? Prof. Heifetz, from the Ukraine gave a first hand account of the thousands of starving homeless waifs left to scavenge for scraps in war-ravaged Ukraine. U.S. immigration laws prohibited their entry into the States. Heifetz then turned to Canada for help.

Lillian Freiman, the first person he approached, pledged that she would do everything in her power to see the project realized.

A Dominion-wide organization evolved, with Mrs. Freiman as president and her husband, A.J., executive director. Mrs. Arthur Meighen, wife of the Prime Minister was honorary president.

Lillian Freiman held numerous meetings with officials in Canadian immigration and external affairs departments. All pledged full government support, issuing documents voluntarily in English and French and requesting the help of other national authorities.

She then embarked on a nation-wide speaking tour, addressing every community from Halifax to Vancouver on the urgency of prompt action and the need for families to consider adoption of these unfortunate children.

An enormously successful fund-raising campaign in December was followed by a barrage of applications for adoption, both by Jews and non-Jews. A sympathetic national press had brought more applications than could be filled.

Committee Signs Agreement

On Feb. 2, 1921, the Committee signed an agreement with the Joint Distribution Committee, giving it access to all the JDC's European facilities' records, warehouses, automobiles, staff. The Canadian group could not have proceeded without the JDC's willing assistance.

At the same time, Leavitt, Hershman and Farrar (an interested non-Jewish member of the executive and a Hamilton alderman), left to start the selection process. They based themselves in Rovno, little prepared for the months of frustrating setbacks and bureaucratic red tape.

Illness and lack of papers meant that the unit had to inspect more than 8,000 from the region before finally approving 146. With official records destroyed and so many medically unfit, few could meet immigration standards.

Logistics Insurmountable

While the Polish government was co-operative, the logistics of trying to move and house large groups in war torn Europe seemed insurmountable. There were no suitable houses in Rovno in which those selected could be placed. The orphans only had the Rovno-issued clothing they wore until the delayed Canadian shipment was finally found. Without official papers, all information required extensive checking. Railway cars were at a premium and no country would allow them to cross the frontiers.

However, under Hershman's administration, the first group of 51 arrived in Vienna June 16, accompanied by Farrar, who started to teach them English and something about Canada.

When word reached a chafing Lillian Freiman, working frantically at this end to expedite their departure, she and her cousin set sail. The main contingent joined the others August 6, three days prior to the sailing for Canada.

Infectious Skin Disease

When an infectious skin condition surfaced, the Belgian community agreed to house and maintain those who would have to follow later.

Back in Canada, the Yiddish speaking Hershman continued to supervise the adopted children's adjustment for a further two years. All flourished in their new environment.

A second similar rescue could not materialize. In 1924, the Jewish World Relief Conference, Paris, voted part of the remaining monies to sustain those orphans left in the Ukraine. A kitchen serving 500 Jewish orphans a day was opened.

Back in Hamilton, Farrar was honoured for his work. He had reimbursed the committee for all expenses incurred during his lengthy work in Europe.

Freimans are Honoured

A.J. and Lillian Freiman were honoured at a dinner for their silver wedding anniversary. Their adopted children, Ruth and Fayge, by then beautiful 16 year olds, paid tribute to Mrs. Freiman on behalf of all the orphans she had rescued.

And a young man, in Ottawa a mere 13 days from Hungary, waited in the hotel corridor for a glimpse of his hero, the guest speaker, Chaim Weizmann. He was struck by the lovely young woman presenting a cup to Mrs. Freiman. Several years later, Ruth became Hugo Levendel's wife.

Personal Fight Against Time

For Lillian Freiman, busily adjusting jackets, it is the end of an exhausting personal fight against time. As president of the Jewish War Orphans Committee of Canada, she has worked for more than a year incessantly to bring the orphans to Canadian homes.

She is obviously deeply moved as the children start to disembark, to the delighted relief of the anxiously waiting crowd. With her is her cousin, Mrs. Asher Pierce of Montreal, who joined the indefatigable Lillian for the crossing to Antwerp July 17, when they were finally notified of the children's readiness for the last European stage of their journey.

Both women had devoted every minute of the crossing to tending the children and matching applications with the orphans to lessen the confusion on landing. Their charges regarded them as wondrous apparitions from their dreams. After one night's rest in

'81 Bonds maturing? Redeem or reinvest

Have you recently checked your Israel Bonds?

Do you have Bonds that mature in 1981? If you do, now is the time to reinvest your Bonds in Israel's future.

When you bought those Bonds, you were expressing your faith and confidence in Israel. That faith has been amply justified. Israel has grown and prospered, despite tremendous obstacles. In fact, in 1980, there would have been no trade deficit — had it not been for an oil bill of $2.5 billion a year!

Now you can show your faith in Israel once more — by reinvesting your matured Bonds in Israel's continuing growth. Israel's crushing oil bill is one of the results of the treaty with Egypt which mandated giving up the Sinai and its oil fields.

Because of the treaty, Israel must make the Negev habitable and economically viable for thousands of civilians who must be moved there from the Sinai. Israel must also prepare for more Jews to come in from many new areas of danger.

Matured Bonds do not pay you any interest. By reinvesting the Bonds, you can again receive interest and continue the job you began when you bought those Bonds — the economic development of Israel.

Ben Karp, the Reinvestment Chairman of the Ottawa Bond Organization, has advised by letter, all purchasers of Bonds that their Bonds will mature in 1981. However, since many of the 1969 purchasers have moved, it is difficult to track down everyone. We trust that you will examine your Bonds and reinvest those that have matured.

You may call the Israel Bond office at 236-7139 or bring your Bond to the Israel Bond office at 168 Charlotte Street, Suite 504, to redeem or reinvest it.

Orpheus Operatic Society of Canada presents

a tribute to 75 years of musical excellence

BRIGADOON

As haunting as "The Heather on the Hill", as mischievous as "The Love of My Life", an endearing as "Come to Me, Bend to Me". Why it's "Almost Like Being in Love!" A beautiful love story, with swirling gay choreography, set in the fairy-tale town of "Brigadoon!"
